Performance Monitoring and Sampling Plan (PM&SP) - Quarterly Report #4

Naval Training Center (NTC), Orlando, Florida CTO 107, Contract No. N62467-89-D-031/107

Dear Ms. Nwokike:

Harding Lawson Associates (HLA) has completed the fourth and final quarter of activities described in the Performance Monitoring and Sampling Plan (PM&SP) located in Appendix B of the Interim Remedial Action (IRA): Conceptual Design and Performance Specification, Operable Unit 4 (OU 4). A brief background of the site history and conditions at OU 4, as well as a technology description of the recirculation wells can also be found in that document.

The objective of the PM&SP is to collect field sampling data and report the results to evaluate the effectiveness of the IRA. The first quarterly report covered the period from December 10, 1997 through March 12, 1998. The second quarterly report covered the period from May 15, 1998 through August 31, 1998. The third quarterly report addressed the period from September 1, 1998 through December 31, 1998. This final report includes the period from January 1, 1999 through April 30, 1999.

This quarterly report will discuss the following: system operation activities; hydraulic performance, groundwater contaminant concentrations in the influent and effluent of the treatment system, air emissions produced by the treatment system, groundwater contaminant concentrations in downgradient monitoring wells and drive points, and conclusions and recommendations.

SYSTEM OPERATION

The OU 4 IRA treatment system consists of two recirculation wells designated UVB-1 and UVB-2 as shown in Figure 1. The treatment system was started on December 10, 1997. The details of the subsequent system operation through December 31, 1998 are included in the first three quarterly monitoring reports.

As discussed in the third quarterly report, several modifications were performed in November 1998 to improve the performance of the recirculation wells. These included the installation of a second pre-packed screen in the upper half of each well to prevent the entry of fine silt, the addition of an external tank to house a larger reinjection pump with higher head capacity, and the installation of a biocide injection system to combat bacterial fouling. Both wells were also re-developed. By mid-December 1998, the modifications had been completed and both UVB-1 and UVB-2 had been restarted.

After the above maintenance activity was completed, the groundwater extraction rate of each well was in the range of 4 to 6 gallons per minute (gpm). Exact flows are uncertain, as the flow meters on each well only operated intermittently. This performance was maintained for approximately 6 weeks. However, reinjection head gradually increased until even the new larger sump pumps were unable to maintain the necessary reinjection rate. Both wells reached a condition where the external tank was filling faster than the sump pump could reinject. Under these circumstances, the high-high water level switch in the external tank was reached, shutting off the extraction pump. The sump pump would then slowly reinject the water accumulated in the external tank until the low-level switch was reached, restarting the extraction pump. Typical operation in this mode had the extraction pump running for approximately 20 minutes and off for 30 minutes, corresponding to estimated reinjection rates of approximately 2 gpm. UVB-1 began cycling in mid-January 1999, and UVB-2 began cycling in late January 1999. UVB-1 continued to operate in this fashion until the end of this reporting period (April 30, 1999).

In mid-April, UVB-2 stopped extracting groundwater, although the extraction pump motor continued to operate. It was believed this was due to pump fouling or wearing of the impellers.

Bechtel and RFWeston conducted a maintenance activity on April 29-30, 1999. The holes in the stripping plates of each well were found to be partially clogged, and were cleaned. This was the first time in almost 18 months of operation that this service was required. The extraction pump in UVB-2 could not be repaired during this visit. Repairs were subsequently rescheduled for a later date. After reassembly, Bechtel reported that UVB-1 continued to cycle, at an average flow of 3 gpm.

RFWeston or one of their subcontractors also periodically made adjustments to both systems during this reporting period. RFWeston has not made the dates and details of these visits available.

IRA MODIFICATIONS

No system modifications were performed during this period.

HYDRAULIC PERFORMANCE

As in the previous quarterly reports, the head response study was used to evaluate and verify the zone of influence generated by the treatment systems. Head response was monitored in six wells adjacent to UVB-1 and two wells near UVB-2.

The eight wells being monitored are arranged in four clusters of two wells as shown on Figure 1. Three clusters monitor the hydraulic performance of UVB-1: OLD-13-OW6A and OLD-13-OW7C, OLD-13-OW8A and OLD-13-OW9C, and OLD-13-OW10A and OLD-13-OW11C. These clusters are located north of UVB-1 approximately 50, 30, and 15 feet, respectively.

OLD-13-OW12A and OLD-13-OW13C are located approximately 15 feet south of UVB-2, and monitor UVB-2's performance. Each cluster is made up of one shallow (A-interval) well screened from 6 to 11 feet below land surface (bls) and one deep (C-interval) well screened from 40 to 45 feet bls. The shallow wells are influenced by the groundwater extracted by each recirculation well, while the deeper wells in each cluster monitor the zone at which the treated water is being returned to the aquifer. This extraction/injection process creates an upward circulation pattern in the aquifer, resulting in a water level differential between the shallow and deep piezometers. The magnitude of the differential is a function of the recirculation rate.

All eight observation wells were monitored using TROLLs Model SP4000, manufactured by In-Situ Incorporated. An SP4000 is also in each recirculation well to monitor drawdown. Several TROLLs ceased to record data during this period, most likely due to battery failure. The TROLL in UVB-2 failed on March 1, the TROLL in observation well –OW7C failed in early April 1999, and the -OW11C and -OW13C TROLLs failed in mid-April. The only critical failure was the loss of both the UVB-2 and –OW13C TROLLs. This left UVB-2 without the ability to monitor hydraulic performance after mid-April.

The comprehensive water level data tables are found in Attachment A.

Hydrographs showing water level elevations versus date are included in Attachment B. Note that the dates are referenced to the beginning of the fourth reporting period on January 1, 1999. Hydrographs are provided for each well pair: OLD-13-OW06A/OLD-13-OW7C, -OW8A/OW9C, -OW10A/-OW11C, and -OW12A/-OW13C, along with water levels for both UVB-1 and UVB-2. A plot of rainfall data for the same time period is also attached. This information helps to distinguish between the natural fluctuations of the water level due to precipitation and the effects that the treatment system has on the surficial aquifer. Obvious increases in piezometer water levels are usually associated with major rain events.

The daily rainfall data was obtained from the National Weather Service, which operates a weather station at the Orlando International Airport (OIA). The OIA is located approximately 15 miles south-southeast of the site. All rainfall data is included in Attachment C.

Wells—OW10A and—OW11C are located 15 feet from UVB-1, and therefore exhibit the greatest response to pumping rate in that recirculation well. Well pairs—OW8A/-OW9C and -OW6A/-OW7C respond to a lesser extent because of the increasing distance from UVB-1. The head differential in -OW10A/-OW11C was approximately 0.9 feet at the beginning of this period. However, the reinjection performance of UVB-1 slowly deteriorated during January. This is shown by the relatively constant fluctuation in —OW10A water levels, while the water level in -OW11C decreased. The constant performance of —OW10A (shallow) demonstrates that the extraction rate in UVB-1 was steady (although cycling). The drop in water level in —OW11C during the same period reflects the decreasing reinjection rate. When the —OW11C TROLL failed in mid-April, the head differential between —OW10A/-OW11C was down to approximately 0.4 feet, corresponding to reinjection flows of 2 to 3 gpm.

In general, the performance of UVB-2 was similar to UVB-1 during this period. The piezometer pair -OW12A/-OW13C is located approximately 15 feet south of UVB-2. Reinjection rates remained relatively constant until January 24, when UVB-2 began cycling. Reinjection rates for UVB-2 continued to decrease into early March, as indicated by the decreasing head differential between -OW12A and -OW13C (Attachment B). On March 5, some system adjustments were made by RFWeston, improving well performance. UVB-2 continued to operate until mid-April, when the well ceased to extract groundwater.

INFLUENT AND EFFLUENT DATA

Water samples were collected from the influent and effluent ports of UVB-1 on January 20, 1999. The samples were collected in 40 milliliter (ml) vials preserved with hydrochloric acid (HCL) and were shipped to an offsite laboratory for analysis using United States Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) Method 8021 for volatile organic compounds (VOCs). A table summarizing the results of this sampling event can be found in Attachment D. This data was collected to measure the efficiency of the recirculation wells and ensure treated groundwater met proper discharge criteria.

The efficiency of the stripping wells can be determined by comparing the influent and effluent total VOC concentrations. The stripping efficiencies for UVB-1 and UVB-2 were 90 and 95 percent, respectively, which are comparable to or slightly better than previous sampling events. The stripping efficiency likely improved further after the stripping plates were cleaned in April 1999.

Table 1-1 from the IRA: Conceptual Design and Performance Specification, OU 4, defined the treatment sphere discharge criteria for tetrachloroethene (PCE) as 8 μ g/l, trichloroethene (TCE) as 80 μ g/l, and total 1,2-DCE as 70 μ g/l. These discharge criteria were established based on Florida's Surface Water Quality Standards for chemicals with an assigned standard. The primary standard was selected for 1,2-DCE because no surface water standard existed. However, the current total 1,2-DCE surface water standard is now 7,000 μ g/l (Chapter 72-777, F.A.C.).

Based on the revised value for 1,2-DCE, UVB-1 met the discharge criteria for TCE and cis-DCE, and slightly exceeded the discharge criteria for PCE (28 μ g/l versus 8 μ g/l). Overall, discharged groundwater quality was substantially better than was present in the aquifer (213 μ g/l total VOCs discharge, compared with 2,180 μ g/l total VOCs influent). UVB-1 was also likely closer to meeting all discharge criteria after the April 1999 stripper plate cleaning. UVB-2 met all discharge criteria, primarily because the total VOC influent concentration (616 μ g/l) was substantially lower than in UVB-1.

The influent concentrations to both UVB-1 and UVB-2 were higher during this last sampling round than any previous sampling event. This suggests that VOC concentrations in the plume remain high, and the IRA still plays an important role in reducing VOC concentrations in groundwater prior to discharge to Lake Druid.

MONITORING AND DRIVE POINT WELLS

Two drive point wells in the lake (DP-2 and DP-5) and two monitoring wells OLD-13-09A and OLD-13-22B) were sampled on January 20, 1999. Sample locations are shown on Figure 1. The samples were analyzed at an offsite laboratory for halogenated VOCs using USEPA Method 8021. A summary of the VOC results is found in Attachment D.

Monitoring well OLD-13-09A is located approximately 100 feet west of UVB-1 at the edge of Lake Druid. Laboratory analytical results from this quarter indicate total VOC concentrations of 2,450 µg/l. This represents the first increase in the concentration of VOCs detected at this location since June 1998 (Figure 2). Based on groundwater modeling conducted by the United States Geological Survey (USGS), this monitoring well was believed to be at the edge of the UVB-1 capture zone. The increase in VOCs at this location is likely a reflection of the extended IRA shutdown experienced in the fall of 1998. USGS has predicted that groundwater would require 3 to 6 months to reach this well from UVB-1.

Monitoring well OLD-13-22B is located approximately 20 feet south of UVB-1, and is screened within the recirculation cell from 27 to 32 feet bls. The VOC concentrations in this well increased from 48 µg/l in September 1998 to 208 µg/l for the January 1999 sampling event. Because OLD-13-22B is located directly within the UVB-1 recirculation cell and is screened near the lower discharge screen, the VOC concentrations in this well react quickly to changes in UVB-1 operation.

Laboratory analytical results for Lake Druid drive point well DP-2 indicate a decrease in total VOC concentrations from 1,097 μ g/l in September 1998 to 366 μ g/l in January 1999. Total VOC concentrations in groundwater collected from DP-5 decreased from 495 μ g/l in September 1998 to 278 μ g/l in January 1999. In both instances, the January data represent the first time that Florida Surface Water Standards have been met at these two locations. Because each drive point monitors groundwater quality discharging to Lake Druid downgradient of each recirculation well (Figure 1), these data represent the most dramatic evidence that the IRA is capable of achieving the required remedial goals in groundwater at the lake. For example, the total VOCs measured in DP-2 have steadily decreased from almost 7,000 μ g/l to the current 366 μ g/l since the IRA began operation (Figure 2). Because the influent concentrations to UVB-1 have actually increased during this period, the reduction in VOCs in DP-2 are likely due primarily to UVB-1 performance, rather than an overall decrease in VOCs in the plume.

AIR EMISSIONS

Offgas samples were collected for the first quarterly report on February 4 and February 19, 1998 from both systems, and were analyzed for VOCs using USEPA Method TO14. The total mass of contaminants emitted from both UVB-1 and UVB-2 combined was less than 0.2 pounds per day. Since recirculation rates and the influent/effluent concentrations of VOCs have not changed dramatically from the first quarter, it can be assumed that emissions are still far below the FDEP maximum limit of 13.7 pounds per day.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Despite the difficulties in maintaining the hydraulic performance of the IRA, downgradient VOC concentrations have decreased substantially since IRA startup, and Florida Surface Water Standards were being met in monitoring points immediately downgradient of each recirculation well. Groundwater VOC concentrations have increased in monitoring well OLD-13-09A, however this is likely due to the lower than desired flowrates through UVB-1. Nevertheless, these data show that the IRA is capable of reducing downgradient VOC concentrations and achieving surface water standards in GW entering the lake, provided the wells can be maintained to achieve the desired recirculation rates. The IRA appears to provide a viable long-term treatment system.

In closing, at the time of this writing, further operation, maintenance, and monitoring of the IRA is shifting from Bechtel/HLA to CH2M HILL. HLA will continue to support CH2M HILL's efforts to improve the performance of the IRA in order to maintain and extend the observed VOC reductions in groundwater discharging to Lake Druid.
